

Simoron

Psychological hunt in the human jungle

Spiritual self help. Kiev 2018. 139 pages

The nowadays legendary Simoron psychotraining was developed by psychologists Petra and Pyotr Burlan in the late 1980s. Its special feature is the orientation not so much towards theory, but towards practical mastery and application in life. Behind Simoron are neither special techniques nor spells or conspiracies. Tried and tested in over twenty years of experience, the Simoron exercises make it possible in a very simple way to free oneself from faulty ideas that one has acquired in the course of social development, to expand one's consciousness infinitely and to clear the way for the implementation of one's own wishes and thoughts.

If everyday life seems grey to us and the morning always looks negative, this means that we have dark glasses in front of our eyes. Should we wear pink glasses instead? No, because it would be much better to remove all blinkers before our eyes and see the world as it is: generous, life-spending! If it were not, we would not have been born. The authors Petra and Pyotr Burlan assume that each of us has inexhaustible natural abilities, and point the way to the exploitation of this potential.

Simoron - is a playful psycho-training that helps a person born into socium to find himself in his „cosmic“ self. Simoron is a funny „striptease“ that tears down the curtains that obscure the view of reality.

This fourth book by the authors «Simoron - a psychological hunt in the human jungle» is a kind of synthesis of the previous three books in which three versions of the system were presented („Simoron at first hand or Burlan-do“, „Pâté from airships and flutes“, „We allow takeoff“). It is shorter in scope than the previous ones, the language is easier and more accessible and especially suitable as an introduction to the Simoron method.
